

-why did you fly?
What did it give you?
What was so important that you gave your life for?

-why did I fly? You ask of me what did I gain in this exchange?
My life, my all just for a flight above the earth, above the clouds?

-yes, I do, I want to know what was the meaning what was the reason

-oh, well, I'll do my best to word the feeling that I had the moment when my father told me this is your gift, do what you will but the next words, those didn't count for I was blinded by the sound my heart was making right then, there when I saw the wings, my wings to wear

-just why were you, oh so blind they were some wings, don't know the kind were they some masterpiece were they so nice?

-just some wings, you may all say but for me, they were the escape my all the reason to go beyond to fly above, to see the sun they were my freedom from the ground that all the time just kept me bound I saw a door, I saw a way I had to leave, I couldn't stay and so I left, I left behind no more worries, a clear mind so yes, I say to you my life for freedom? Any day but still, your life, had just begun why did you give it all away when all is said and all is done it was a foolishness by far

I just told you, it was freedom, that my heart yearned everyday I just couldn't miss this chance now please my father don't be sad I will meet you in the end
I will meet you there above

I will seek you with a smile don't, just don't, please don't say that how can I look you in the eyes?

I cannot phantom what you thought why? Why did you leave?
You were my own, you were my kin you were the only one I had my only son, my only friend in the dark times that we both had you were my light, my only reason you were my bright in this dark prison we had a chance to start anew but you were drawn by that sky blue yes, of course, I know that much you were also all I got but still, I couldn't stay the same when of freedom I got a taste but now, my father, I am no more don't dwell on me, please just move on save yourself from all the sadness find a new reason to be selfless teach and love, work and sleep life will only get more steep so just try, because with trying life will feel the same as flying I just tried to do it all In one go, for I felt small